Artlantis, from virtuality to paper !

Abvent is proud to welcome the Artlantis guide book “The Missing Book”. An English version of the Italian “Artlantis R e Studio, guida all’uso” (Edizioni FAG Milano).

“The Missing Book” is a concrete and evident help for Artlantis beginners, but it is also a tremendous reference for those who practice as experts.

Besides the explanation of the individual program commands and of each tools, it also delves into the purpose of each function through practical use, and provides recommendations on how to maximise program implementation, methods of photorealistic rendering techniques such as lighting, textures and animations. “The Missing Book” provides an unexpected source of tips & tricks for final quality optimization.

This handbook has been driven by the long experience of the authors - the architects Roberta Cecchi, Roberto Corona, Daniele Raggi and Pietro Spampatti, trained by their daily use of the program at a professional level and in their share of knowledge as official Abvent beta-testers.

This team is born as a users group actively participating in the ArchiRADAR forums. Where experience and professional skills are shared and where each other suggest, correct or teach in an incredible spirit of cooperation. “The Missing Book” is the perfect companion for the walk of architects, interior designers, landscape designers, town planners or students, into the world of Artlantis.
